U.S. Drug Test Set for Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) The Transportation Depart-ment will impose a broad, ran-dom drug-testing program on the aviation industry, propose similar testing for railroad employees and test 26,500 of its own workers, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth H. Dole said Wednesday.

Mrs. Dole said that random testing for railroad workers would have to be approved by Congress, but that the Federal Aviation Administration would require such testing for com-mercial pilots and flight crew members through regulatory action. She acknowledged that random testing was likely to be opposed by labor unions and may face a court challenge.

It had requested the rescheduling of about $2.3 billion of arrears on interest and principal for 1985 and 1986, as well as $3.2 billion in repayments falling due this year.

Bonn Hesitates On Extradition

Concern for Hostage Is Cited; 2d German Missing in Beirut

Washington Post Service BONN — West German offi-cials ruled out Wednesday the quick extradition of a Lebanese terrorist suspect wanted by the United States, citing the necessity of safe-guarding a West German hostage in Beirut. A second West German was reported missing in Lebanon, and officials said that they feared that he had been abducted as well.

The government was preparing for a long crisis following the ab-duction on Saturday of Rudolf Cordes, 53, an executive of the Hoechst AG chemical company, officials said.

"Our principal objective at the moment is to get out Mr. Cordes unhanned," Friedheim Ost, the chief government spokesman, said. Mr. Ost identified the second missing man as Alfred Schmidt, an employee of Siemens AG, who was installing medical equipment in a West Beirut hospital. There was no immediate official indication whether Mr. Schmidt's disappearance was connected with the abduction of Mr. Cordes,

An anonymous telephone caller to an international news agency in Beinst said that Mr. Schmidt had been seized in West Beirut, but no group has claimed responsibility.

Officials said that Mr. Cordes was being held by a pro-Iranian Shiite group, Hezbollah, or Party of God, and that the group was demanding the release from West any of Mohammed Ali Ha-Germ

"It makes sense not to do any-thing with undue speed," said an official who spoke on condition that he not be identified. The danger to Mr. Cordes "would probably be multiplied" if Mr. Hamadei were extradited, he said.

"I don't think that it is a decision that needs to be taken now or tomorrow," an official said. "There have been kidnapping cases that take month and months."

Asked about Washington's de sire to bring Mr. Hamadei to the United States, to face trial, two sources said that the U.S. point of view was "low on the list" of the government's priorities. They pointed to Washington's own se-cret deals with Iran on behalf of U.S. hostages held by pro-Iranian groups in Lebanon.

The Americans have not been very tough themselves," a source said. "Look at Iran. They should be careful."

> While ruling out an immediate extradition of Mr. Hamadei, the officials also said that Bonn was unwilling to free him quickly, as Hezbollah wants.

The officials pointed to the Bonn government's strong stance against concessions to terrorists in 1977 when West German leftists seized and murdered Hanns Martin Schleyer, an industralist.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who at that time was a leader of the opposition, supported the refusal of Chancellor Helmat Schmidt to release imprisoned terrorists as the industrialist's abductors demand-

After then, they reportedly said, a continued decline might retrigger inflation.

Inflation theoretically could be rekindled in two ways. As the dol-lar's value falls, the U.S. government must pay higher interest rates to attract foreign investors, whose capital is vital to financing the U.S. budget deficit. Also, the declining dollar makes imported goods more expensive to American consumers.

Meanwhile, there were increasing signs Wednesday that Japan and West Germany will soon cut their central bank discount rates to nbtain U.S. help in stabilizing exchange rates.

But there was no indication that Mr. Baker was ready to intervene in the exchange markets or abandon the predominant U.S. view that the dollar needs to decline further against the Japanese yen and the Dentsche mark to narrow the U.S. trade deficit.

By Ionathan C. Randal Washington Post Service NDJAMENA, Chad - Now that the roof of the Roman Catholic cathedral, damaged in war, has finally been replaced, there is once again a vague semblance of orderliness here that is reminiscent of that period when the maps of Africa were mostly blue for British and pink for French.

For the first time since shortly after France granted the country independence in 1960, Chadians have a prospect of peace and quiet in what geographers used to call the cross-roads of the Sahara and the gateway to central Africa.

The recent victorinus government offensive against the Libyans in northern Chad has encouraged this hope - as well as the possibility, which is still remote - of a total Libyan withdrawal.

But optimism is tempered by the visual reminder of thousands of bullet holes in buildings in Ndjamena from nine months of fighting in 1980 that killed thousands of people, mostly civilians, and destroyed the cathedral roof. By one indicator, Chad is the poorest of the world's nations. Even before two decades of nearly uninterrupted violence, the country accepted its fate as an economic backwater.

Its real importance has been as a gateway to somewhere

For centuries this was true for Moslem nomads who raided animist blacks settled in the south and sold them into slavery in Saudi Arabia and elsewhere.

After Decades of War, Prospects for Peace in Chad

But oow, for the first time. Libya is without a significant Chadian ally, and Colonel Gadhafi can no longer contend that the fighting is purely among Chadians. In October, Goukomi Oueddei, a former president overthrown in 1982 by a fellow northerner, Hissen Habre, broke with Colonel Gadhafi while under virtual house arrest in Tripoli. His 1,500 Toubou nomad troops in the rugged Tibesti mountains of northwest Chad joined Mr. Habre's government forces.

The Libyan connection started with Chad's first president, François Tombalbaye, who was a southemer. He touched off a rebellion in the mid-1960s by sending overbearing southern officials to the north, which is ethnically distinct.

In 1973, Tombalbaye turned to Colonel Gadhafi for money and purportedly acquiesced in Libya's annexation of the Aozou Strip, which is said to be rich in minerals, which runs along the frontier. Northern Chadians thus would be deprived of their prime natural resources.

With rebellion spreading, even the voodoo priests Tom-balbaye imported from Haiti as part of an African "authenticity" campaign failed to prevent his assassination in a 1975 army coup.

Then followed a profusion of rival armies whose depredations ravaged much of the countryside and then, in two battles in 1979 and 1980, the capital itself.

Throughout the 1970s, attention focused on two northerners who were first allies and then rivals: Mr. Goukouni, son of the spiritual leader of Tibesti, and Mr. Habre, who was educated in Paris.

Mr. Habre and Mr. Goukouni, both from the Toubou tribe and both born in the early 1940s, first attracted international attention in 1974 when they abducted Fran-

Before she was released in 1976, a French Army major dispatched to negotiate her freedom was taken hostage and executed when Paris refused to meet Mr. Habre's conditions. Nonetheless, the northerners received an undisclosed amount of money, vehicles, medicine and other supplies. The two northern leaders fell out in 1976 over the issue of Libya's annexation of the Aozou Strip. For tactical reasons, Mr. Goukouni remained loyal to Libya, Mr. Habre broke with Colonel Gadhafi and soon became the focus of interest and aid from the United States, France, Egypt, Sandi Arabia and Sudan, which were determined to block Libyan expansion Although he was repeatedly defeated and counted out,

Mr. Habré used these foreign friends to light his way back to power in 1982. He is driven by a desire to retake Faya-Largean, his northern hometown casis, although it is not a major issue to most Chadians.

The dominant concerns of most Chadians relate to some uncaviable distinctions the country holds, starting with the world's lowest annual per-capita income: 578, according to statistics from international organizations.

Moreover, Chad has no railroad, no river port, no daily departing international airline flight and no daily newspaper. Its 155 miles (250 kilometers) of paved road are in deplorable condition.

BEIJING (LAT) — China imposed strict new curbs on the press Wednesday, creating a high-level organization to control all aspects of news and publishing operations throughout the nation. The action apparently is aimed at reining in those Chinese newspapers and magazines that are not directly affiliated with the Communist Party and that have been showing some signs of independence in recent years. The Xinhua news agency said the organization, called the Modia and Publications Office, was being set up directly under the State Council, the Chinese equivalent of a presidential cabinet.

The office will have responsibility for approving all new newspapers magazines and publishing bouses in China. It also will control the sale of books, magazines and newspapers, supervise distribution of paper and newspirit and "oversee the publication of news."

There should never be further cases of torture or human rights abases in our society," said Mr. Chung. He replaced Kim Ching Hoh as interior minister Tuesday after it was disclosed Monday that Park Jong Chol, 21, a student, was tortured to death while in police custody last week.

President Chun Doo Hwan ordered his cabinet to set up a special body to "prevent the repetition of this torture incident and protect the people man rights," a presidential spokesman said, "The body should be hu composed of leaders from various social sectors and study measures to protect human rights," he quoted the president as saying.

Mixed-Race Leader Apologizes to Botha

CAPE TOWN (AP) - The leader of the mixed-race House of Representatives apologized to President Pieter W. Botha on Wednesday for causing him embarrassment by swimming at a whites-only beach. The apology thus averted a crisis that could have brought about the dissolution of Parliament,

The letter of apology was released to the press at a news conference by Mr. Botha. He said he had told the Labor Party leader, the Reverend Allan Hendrickse, that he must apologize or be dismissed as a cabinet member and head of the council of ministers in the House, "I appointed him," the president noted

Mr. Botha said that dismissing Mr. Hendrickse would have forced him to dissolve Parliament. That decision apparently would require new elections for all three houses of Parliament, rather than for just the white chamber, as is planned for sometime this year. In 1984, Parliament created chambers for whites, Asians and people of mixed-race, but there is no national representation for blacks,

The visit, by a Foreign Ministry official, came as a French magazine said that the government had received a warning that a terrorist bombing wave that hit Paris in Sep-tember, killing 11 persons, could resume shorthy.

The attacks, according to the conservative Le Point, would begin again if Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, a Lebanese jailed in France on arms charges, is not tried by the beginning of March oo other charges that he faces.

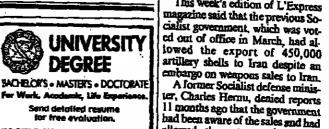

He is due to be tried in connection with the murders of an American and of an Israeli diplomat in 1982. Court officials said Tuesday that a decision on the date for the trial would be announced Jan. 28.

The Iranian envoy, Ali Ahani, the head of the Foreign Ministry's European and American Department, met with Foreign Minister Jean-Bernard Raimond for nearly two hours Monday for talks that were believed to concern French hostages held by pro-Jranian groups in Lebanon. Officials gave oo details of the meeting.

Armacost Stresses Caution

While Mr. Armacost's visit was portrayed officially as a routine opportunity to exchange views, he is believed to have pressed Pakistani officials not to rush to a decision that Moscow has markedly changed its policy toward Afghani-stan before full details of the Soviet position are known. The Washing-ton Post reported from Islamabad.

Mr. Armacost underscored this caution when he said on leaving Islamabad on Tuesday that while the Soviet initiatives were discussed, "it is deeds that count, and the deed that is most important is the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

He indicated that there is no change in the U.S. position on Afghanistan so far, saying that Washington has "always supported the just struggle of the Afghan people to see that foreign troops leave their country and see that political arrangements are established in Kabul which are responsive to the will of all Afghans."

On Saturday, the mujahidin ended a three-day conference in Paki-stan with a toughly worded declaration that a government composed of the seven insurgent factions based in Peshawar, Pakistan, would take over after a Soviet withdrawal, a Pakistani diplomat noted. SINGAPORE - An international network of seismic stations to monitor underground nuclear tests is likely to be operational within three years even if the Unit-ed States and the Soviet Union refuse to participate, Australian officials said Wednesday.

They said the network might be formed by Sweden and Australia next year.

Using sensitive detection devices and advanced computer and com-munication facilities, a Swedish-Australian link would be capable of detecting all but the smallest nuclear explosions in most parts of the world, the officials added. The governments of both coun-tries, which are leading advocates of ouclear arms-control measures, say they believe that a global seismic surveillance system would make a major contribution to the conclusion of verifiable treaties banning or strictly limiting tests of nuclear explosives.

Weather Shift Is Moderate As El Niño Comes Back

By Boyce Rensberger

Washington Past Service WASHINGTON --- El Niño, the occasional climatic disturbance that shifts the world's weather paiterns and can cause severe weather problems, has returned.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, in an advisory Tuesday, said the current El Niño is near the midpoint of a typical 18-month life cycle. But. anlike its disastrous predecessor in 1982 and 1983, it appears to be moderate and is not expected to cause severe problems anywhere, the agency said.

El Niño has brought drier than usual weather, although not drought, to the western Pacific regioo of the Philippines, Indonesia, Australia and New Guinea,

The zone of altered weather is expanding eastward and could bring dry weather to Brazil next month when the rainy season usually begins, the agency said. Southern Africa is also drier. The last El Niño, which began in large clouds that keep the region April 1982 and ended in July 1983, wet. was the worst in more than a century. It was hlamed for 1,300 to 1,500 deaths worldwide and economic losses of $2 billion to $8 billion. It brought Australia its worst drought in two centuries and Peru its most rain in 450 years.

The 1982-83 El Niño caused floods in southern China and drought in the north, lashed the west coast of the United States with severe storms and sent six typhoons through French Polynesia within five months. Although archaeologists consider the Chaco Canyon culture to have been almost as advanced as that of the Maya in Central America, the Chaco Canyon inhabitants were unable to sustain the life-giving qualities of their environment.

"Throughout the Anasazi region." Mr. Betancourt said in an interview, "pack rats established nests and left middens" or dungheaps. "The feces and scraps they left in the middens were soaked in urine, which dried and crystallized, preserving the seeds and plant fragments the rats had eaten.

The rats always foraged within a 50-yard radius of their nests, he explained, and as many as 30 different plant species are represented by fossilized seeds and twigs in each midden. The age of the mate-rial is determined by analysis for

"This gives us a series of snapshots of what plant species were growing in the Chaco Canyon region at various times during the history of the region," Mr. Betancourt said.

"You can see abrupt deforesta tion in the Chaco Canyon, as stark-as night and day, as obvious as it is on Easter Island in the Pacific, Prior to 1,000 years ago there was pinyou-jumiper woodland in the Chaco Canyon, and for the past 1,000 years it was gone. The change was inteversible."

CHICAGO (NYT) - Of all phenomena that affect the human condition none has perplexed scientists more than the forward march of time, its link to the scemingly relentless tendency toward disorder known as entropy, and to the expansion of the universe. Some of the world's leading theorists have speculated that, if the current expansion reverses itself and the universe begins to contract, the arrow of time will change direction. People - if there are any --- would live from the grave to the cradle and would "remember" what is to happen tomorrow. Some theorists have suggested that those living in such a universe would not be aware that time was running backward, because their perception of time would be reversed. But they would live in a universe whose future, in every detail, is predetermined. Scientists have also suggested that our universe might have a twin, formed of antimatter, in which time runs backward.

Stephen W. Hawking of Cambridge University in England, a prominent proponent of the view that time would run backward in a shrinking universe, an-nonneed recently that he had changed his mind. Re-cent research had led him to conclude that time would still march forward, even if the universe began to contract, he told a conference in Chicago on astrophysics.

Placebo's Chemical Effect

WASHINGTON (WP) — A placebo given for pain may be as effective as 8 milligrams of morphine, a modest dose, medical researchers have found.

A placebo is any pill, potion or procedure that has no direct effect but which the patient believes is going to prove effective in treating some illness. Placebo drugs are often mercly sugar pills. A mother's kiss on a skinned knee can also act as a placebo.

Now Dr. Jon Levine of the University of California at San Francisco has found that placebo pain relief is also chemical. He has found evidence that it is the result of the brain, triggered by expectations, produc-ing quantities of natural pain-killing substances that are chemically similar to opiates such as morphine. Such natural pain-killers have been the subject of much recent brain research.

Super Carrot Developed

WASHINGTON (WP) — Plant breeders have pro-duced a "super carrot," a new variety of the vegetable that contains 10 times the usual amount of carotene, the substance that the body converts into vitamin A.

The development could prove a boon to parts of the Third World where vitamin A deficiency is so severe that millions of children suffer permanent blindness as a result.

The new carrot, called Beta III, was developed at the Agricultural Research Service's Vegetable Crops Research laboratory in Madison, Wisconsin. Field tests are under way in south Asia and central Africa to PASADENA, California (AP) — Scientists have discovered 10 galaxies in a hidden zone of the universe behind the Milky Way, and say tens of thousands more could be revealed by a full-scale search. The star systems were found when astronomers

While 10 is a small number of galaxies in a universe believed to contain billions, the discoveries are significant because they were made during a pilot attempt to explore the zone of avoidance, said Steve Maran, spokesman for the American Astronomical Society and a surging another at the National Astronomical Society and a senior scientist at the National Aeronan-tics and Space Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland.

Although the animals did not have Alzheimer's, further studies might lead to an animal version of at least part of the disease, said Dr. Dennis Selkoe of Harvard's Brigham and Women's Hospital. Scientists have not yet found an animal version of Alzheimer's, which would allow more experimentation than is now possible.

Dr. Selkoe's research focused on amyloid, a fibrous material that makes up the plaques found in brains of Alzheimer's victims. Such plaques also appear in normal aging, but Alzheimer's victims accumulate them in greater numbers.

military weapons and sometimes civilian goods with military uses. The buyers are often Russian. But for years there has been a rancorous quarrel in the Reagan administration over the breadth of these controls. The Defense Department has pressed incessantly to keep adding items to the list, often goods openly available abroad. Almost everyone else in the administration has been arguing that the controls are already too broad to be effective. But the Defense Department has usually had the upper hand. As the complaints continued to rise, the ration eventually set up a com sion to look into the controls. It was headed by Lew Allen Jr., a former chief of staff of the air force, and included a former secretary of defense, Melvin Laird, as well as a former deputy director of the CIA and a former director of defense research and engineering. Their report, which appeared this week, offers sensible and useful advice.

The Soviets make strennous and frequently successful efforts to acquire Western technology by hook or by crook. But they lag behind the West in most fields and, the commission found, the gap may be widening because of Soviet dependence on Western equipment which, by the time it comes onto the commercial market, is always behind the work going on in the labs. The commission urged the administra-tion to give more weight to economic con-

Everybody agrees that the U.S. govern-ment has to control sensitive exports — U.S. exports, particularly of the high-technology industries that are America's special strength. The commission found that by 1985, fully 40 percent of U.S. manufactured exports, not counting military goods, were covered by export controls. The sheer volhes the attention to the few unce dim truly critical items. Meanwhile, the commission says, American companies are los-ing sales because of licensing delays. It takes on average six weeks to get an export license from the Commerce Department; a Japanese exporter can get one from the Tokyo government in two or three days. The commission described the case of a U.S. exporter trying to sell something called a nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer to a medical institute in Eastern Europe. The licensing procedure took nearly three years because of the device's microprocessors and disk drives - components, the sors and cust unves — components, the report noted, produced by the millions in other countries. ## Should West Germans Really Get More of the Same?

By Christoph Bertram

HAMBURG - By all expectations, the elections on Sunday will return to power the same government that has ruled the Federal Republic for the last four years. "More of the same," is the slogan of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democrats, and that, in all likelihood, is what West German voters want and what Europe will get: Four more years of a steady if lackluster regime in Bonn, firmly committed to the Western alliance and otherwise intent on maintaining the pleasant status quo.

There is, on the surface, nothing wrong with this attitude. West Germany is doing well eco-nomically, and while the West may be entering a period of protracted economic turbulence, the country has enough accumulated strength to last it out. Yet at the same time West Germany is uniquely vulnerable. Part of a divided nation that is carrying the mortgage of the Nazi years, it needs the Western and European framework of support, particularly when the going gets rough. But during the last four years the Kohl government has preferred to draw on assets rather than invest in the future. In particular, it has shown a marked insensitivity to a fact that is now recognized as a sm by neighbors but is still ignored by most s: that, in economic terms, the Federal Republic today is Europe's superpower. As other superpowers have found out, strength all too easily begets resentment. There are a number of good reasons why

West Germans have found it difficult to accept their newly dominant position and take it into account in shaping policy toward their neighbors. For one, not least because of the megalomania of Hitler's Reich and the fate it suffered, Germans harbor a deep uneasiness about being powerful. West Germany's postwar experience has been that of an applicant who wishes to be accepted, not that of a leader who seeks to impress others. West Germans like to think of mselves not as a powerful but as a medium-and missiles, for its ties with East Germany on Soviet acquiescence and for its prosperity on fickle world markets.

Moreover, as the country's international weight has increased, Boun has discovered the tactical advantage of putting its light under a bushel. By maintaining a low profile, successive governments have sought to deflect undue for-eign demands on their purse. The initial reaction to inquiries of support from West Ger-many's partners is that these are unjustified. Why, people ask, should we bail out those who have worked less, invested less, exported less and saved less than we have? If governments have tended to be cautious in taking initiatives within the European Community, it has not been only for lack of ambition but also for fear that the bill would ultimately end up in Bonn.

Yet power has caught up with Germans whether they like it or not. For Boun to plead inability is interpreted today in other capitals as unwillingness, as a refusal to accept the respon-sibilities that power and success convey.

Perhaps the first postwar leader to under-Perhaps the init postwar leader to innor-stand that a strong rather than a weak West Germany runs the risk of being isolated in Europe was Helmut Schmidt. Before taking major action, whether in establishing the Euro-pean Monetary System or in calling for Ameri-can missiles to balance what he saw as a new threat from the East, Mr. Schmidt always sought to form a coalition with others, preferably with France. And he worked hard at promoting a network of European consensus.

His successor, Helmut Kohl, who has been chancellor since 1982, promised continuity in foreign policy when he took over. Indeed, offi-cial contacts between Bonn and Paris have rarely been more intense than in the last four years. But they coincided with the growing trend of Enro-fatigue which has finally caught up with the Germans. Like most of their ne bors, the Germans have become inward-look ing and more nationalistic. Mr. Kohl and his powerful minister of finance, Gerhard Stolten-berg, fully reflect this mood. Despite a torrent of pro-European statements, they rarely won-der how their policies affect the interests of erful minister of finance, Gerhard Stoltenothers. Rather, they have stuck to the conve-nient belief that what is good for Germany will ultimately be good for Europe as a whole. Although convenient, this is a very short-sighted recipe for West German politics. If a reminder of the cost of parochial egoism were needed, it has been provided by the exchange rate crisis this month and its temporary resolution. The United States and France had pressed for a reduction of West German interest rates in vain for several months. When the weakness of the dollar and the French franc pushed up the mark, Bonn finally — and with barely concealed initiation --- agreed to a marginal revalu-ation. Only now that the dollar is falling and German exports suffering have West German authorities considered reducing interest rates. If this had been done a year or six months earlier, when West Germany's trading partners demanded it, the revaluation exercise might not have been necessary at all. Much political friction, particularly with France and the United States, would certainly have been avoided.

In a recent interview, Jacques Delors, preai-dent of the European Commission, had this to say about the role of West Germany: "The more you succeed, the greater your responsibil-ity." If it refuses to recognize that this is the burden of power, the Federal Republic will in the end damage its own interests even more than those of its Western partners. Instead of a than those of its western pareners, instead of a prospering West Germany in a cohesive West-ern Europe, the result will be an isolated West Germany in a weak Europe. So "more of the same" is scarcely a sound guideline for West German policy in the next four years. But will this be clear to the winning old term as in its down in Roma after the 25 to old team as it sits down in Bonn after Jan. 25 to chart the future course of the country?

Help for the Wrong Side

Iraq has had air superiority throughout its long war with Iran and is using it effectively to constrain Iranian oil exports. Both countries have missiles with which they can attack each other's cities. But in this war neither long-range bombing nor attacks on civilian populations are crucial. What really counts is the war on the ground and the ability of troops to take and hold territory. The current fighting has resulted in no crucial victory so far, but it is clear that the Iranian infantry -at a terrible cost in lives, but one that its leaders are willing to pay is grinding forward. The Iraqis, much more heavily armed but outnumbered and less managers have to put it somewhere. The greater fool theory. For Wall Street money managers eager to justify six-figure salaries, what might happen in 10 years is not nearly as interesting as what might happen in 10 days. Stocks can never be overpriced as long as there is a "greater fool" who will pay even more next week. Whether any such explanations are right is hard to know. But there is comfort in the knowledge that historically there is not much connection between stock market averages and real gains and losses from jobs, profits and inflation. The January rally will not change the facts of economic life much; neither would a February bust. What is troubling about the current speculative fever is the speed of the temperature change. Factors like low-cost automated trading, the rise of institutional investors and the worldwide imbalance in savings rates all have accelerated the pace at which markets adjust to changing expectations. It is not yet possible to pinpoint ways in which this new trading environment has damaged the world economy, let alone to justify marks and yen to spend. The liquidity boom. During the past decade, in elec-tion after election, Republicans generated political voltage from two themes: a populist appeal against big government and a "standing tail" message in world affairs.

Arab states on the west side of the Gulf, notably Saudi Arabia; it would greatly strengthen Iran's influence over oil prices. The revelations of U.S. arms sales to Iran have given a very significant lift to Iran's morale and strengthened the impression in the Middle East that an Iranian victory is becoming inevitable. One of the strangest aspects of President Reagan's decisions to proceed with the sales is that neither be nor the people around him seem to have given sufficient consideration to those conseanences or to the harm to U.S. interests that would flow from an Iranian triumph.

Last fall's campaigns demonstrated that the anti-government appeal bas, for now, lost most of its power. Mr. Reagan fired all his favorite barbs about tax-and-spend Demo-crats. The voters refused to bite, largely because the Democrats re-fused to fight. And the public, in large measure because it believes that Mr. Reagan has triumed the excesses of .government, was not nearly as worried about big government as a decade ago. Mr. Reagan ment of his first trip to At the comp Africa as secretary of state, George Shultz held an undersize T-shirt next to his oversize abdomen to demonstrate the inadequacy of the State Department budget enacted by Congress. There was validity to his complaint. The demonstration of inadequate resources for substantial needs also symbolizes American policy toward Africa.

Africa is in crisis, desperately in need of increased American aid --- at least a tripling of aid, according to one authoritative study - and its problems are getting worse be-cause of some of the world's highest birthrates. But the United States has responded with cuts in aid, and has compounded the fundamental problem of overpopulation by cutting off all funding to the two most effective programs - those of the International Planned Parenthood Federation and the UN Fund for Population Activities. Two themes repeated by Mr. Shultz on the trip were the importance of self-help and avoidance of dependence on aid. Over and over again on the six-nation tour he appealed for a new emphasis on the private sector, which has been strangled by regulation and competing state enterprises in many African nations. Fair enough. But no amount of reform can solve the problem in inadequate investment and aid. Nor will enhanced private sectors pay Africa's debts that, although small in comparison with the obligations of Latin nations, total an in-credible $162 billion. Repayment and debt service are consuming one-third of the ex-port earnings of the debtor nations. Per-haps the secretary will have seen enough now to support additional money for next year's aid budget in which Africa is slated for only 5 percent of the total.

Southeast Asia: More Smoke Than Fire Amid the Maneuvering

WASHINGTON - At first W glance, fighting along the Chi-nese-Vietnamese border this month and the tough line on Cambodia that emerged from Victnam's party congress last month can seem to have set back a timid improvement of atmosphere in recent months. But a closer look suggests that an apparent hard-ening of positions is tactical and not a prelude to escalation. After refusing to discuss the Cambodia question with Beijing for two years, Moscow agreed to address it in October. Vietnam's foreign minister attended the Chinese national day reception in Hanoi, and a Vietnamese table tennis team traveled to China.

By Nayan Chanda In a secret approach in late Octo-ber to Prince Norodom Sibanouk, who heads the anti-Vietnamese resis-tance in Cambodia, Hanoi proposed talks between all parties to the conflict — non-Communist Cambodiand hostility toward Ghina. ans, Victnam's protégés in Phnom Penh and even some members of the The congress rewarded some of those directly involved in the eightbuse uncert in the equi-year-old occupation of Cambodia. mance by the party's rank and file.

C ANBERRA — Until recently, Vietnam's Communist Party was dominated by men who had become politically active in the 1920s. Starting in 1951, this first generation of revolutionaries, comparable to Russia's Bolshevik or China's "Loog March" generation, were elected to top party positions at each succeeding national coogress. Last month at the sixth congress, in a move not usually associated with leadership change in Communist states, the party's founding fathers bowed out. Six full Politburo members retired --- although three were appointed special advisers, while a fourth retained his seat on the Central Committee.

Along with generational succes-sion there has been an evolution in Vietnam's political system, as it has moved from an operational mode dictated by the exigencies of war to a more routine pattern. As party con-lin contrast, military represent

Cambodians Are Neglected Yet Again

N OW we have another demonstration of the Cambodians as a forgotten people: Thailand has decided to close down the Khao I Dang refugee camp. Unless something happens to alter this decision, the 26,000 people in the camp, including many infants born there, will lose their legal status as refugees and become "displaced persons" - vulnerable pawns once again. Initially they will be moved even closer to the border to camps admin not by the UN High Commissioner for Refugees but by the resistance groups that have been fighting the Vietnamese and the client government they installed in Cambodia in 1979. The new arrivals will join 250,000 Cambodians already classified as "displaced persons." These are people who have fled in the last few years to escape the stepped-up fighting. (In addition there are perhaps 100,000 displaced Laotians and a small number of Vietnamese.)

The rose-colored notion behind the denial of refugee status is that these victims of the Indochina war can be returned to their countries of origin when conditions permit. That would require the restoration of something approach-ing normalcy in Cambodia. And that in turn would require China, the Soviet Union and the United States to agree to make Cambodia a priority, something they have never done. So these hundreds of thousands of people will likely remain in wretched limbo for years, maybe decades.

Perhaps not. The increased prominence of General Anh and Mr. Bach does not necessarily signal a harden-ing of position. While these men have their own policies and records to de-fend, they also bring to the highest policy-making body direct experi-ence of the difficalty of long-term occupation of Cambodia.

Few know better than General Anh the strategic value of Cambodia to Vietnam, but few have greater appreciation of the difficulty of build-ing a loyal and effective Cambodian army. And few in the Vistnamese leadership are more familiar with the problems of deep-scated anti-Vietnamese feelings among the Cambodi-ans than Mr. Bach. The elevation of these men could instill greater realism in Hanoi's approach. Domestic political considerations may dictate a hard-line position on Cambodia at this stage. Long and acrimonious debate over economic reform and leadership renewal in the months before the congress, and even after it, shows that the reformers have an uphill battle. The border fighting seems to serve a Vietnamese purpose as well. By exaggerating China's attacks, Hanoi tells its Southeast Asian opponents that it is unimpressed by such pressure. And it shows Moscow that the Soviet hope of softening China through dialogue is unrealistic. Only by standing firm behind Vietnam, Hanoi is saying, can Moscow hope to bring China toward accommodation After the border fighting dies down, diplomacy will resume, with Moscow and Beging pressuring each other and Hanoi maneuvering with the Cambodian resistance and its non-Communist backers in a bid to settle a war that nobody can win.

Is It Too Much to Ask From the Vatican?

N EW YORK — Everybody, a nice round of applause for Cardinal John O'Connor and the Israeli leaders. Between them they managed recently to destroy two old stereotypes about peo-pic, and that of course is always healthy. The Israelis, by getting their country deep in the muck of the Iran arms deal. showed that not all Jews are smart. The cardinal, by displaying strong public ir-ritation about criticism of his Jerusalem trip, showed that not all Christians dizzy themselves turning the other check.

The cardinal and the heads of the American Jewish organizations that said some unadmiring things about his prononncements in Jerusalem and about the fact that the Vatican would not let him visit Israch officials in their offices met on Monday to try to smooth things over, and that was fine. Now we can see what the spat obscured: the real issue. It was not the cardinal's trip or the criticism but the Vatican's policy of re-fusing diplomatic recognition to Israel and Rome's rigidity in enforcing it. The Vatican has its reasons for refusing the diplomatic recognition that 82 countries have extended to Israel. And although it manages to have diplomatic relations with about 125 countries, including Communist Poland and assort-ed other tyrannies, those reasons are judged overriding in the case of Israel. The Vatican does not recognize Jerusalem as the capital of Israel and wants the city put under some kind of international agreement. The Israelis see this as removing their sovereignty over the city they insist on regarding as their capital, even at the price of being considered somewhat stiff-necked and stubborn. The Vatican backs the Palestinians' desire for a state. And it feels recognithat seems to me to be the issue at the heart. What would have been so dreadful if the Vatican had decided to avoid creating embarrassment and real hurt out of its own error and had been gracious and courteous enough to allow the cardinal go ahead with his scheduled visits to the prime minister and the foreign minister of Israel? After all, the nations that have diplomatic relations with Israel do business in Jerusalem government offices every day, although only a few formally acknowledge Jerusalem as the capital. It is an unappetizing charade hut better than acting as if sitting in an Israeli office would be contaminating.

replacement word are limited. Since terms associated with ill health are out of bounds, "sickling" or "suffer-er" certainly won'i do, "Valetudinarian," meaning a person of weak or sickly constitution, is a splendid word that might be stretched through common usage to cover all who go to the doctor. But it is too big a mouthful to catch on. If shortened to "valet," it is no better than "patient" in terms of status vis-à-vis the doctor. Malpractice lawyers often refer to recipients of medical attention as victims," but the health industry cannot be expected to go for that. Given the overthy competitive tactics that doctors and hospitals now employ to attract people needing their services, "customer" might be appropriate. Or consideration might be given to "account," which is the word that many business people use to describe those who provide their income. Both those words, however, sound tacky in a professional context. So the tide seems to be moving loward "client" as the preferred replacement for "patient." "Client" has the advantage of established usage in the purchase of professional services. It is a neutral term that links a needful huver and a presumably expert provider. Lawyers and accountants deal with elients. Why not doctors? The difficulty with calling a patient a "client" is that the term neglects the shaman aspect in medicine --- the magical medicine-man role that even well educated laymen anxiously and hopefully assign to their physicians. All the more reason to jetuson "patient," the reformers would contend, Enlightened doctoring is in revolt against shamanism, as well as against medical authoritarianism and unrealistic expectations. ### WALL STREET WATCH

After Gains, Market Seems Ready to Catch Its Breath

By VARTANIG G. VARTAN New York Times Service

EW YORK - Whenever stocks move sharply in one Live I OKK — whenever stocks move snarply in one direction or another for a sustained period, Wall Street's eyes inevitably turn to the giants of the market, the institutional investors, for a reading of what to expect next. What the investors are saying is that, after 13 straight expect next. What the investors are saying is that, after 13 straight days of moving forward, the market is ready to catch its breath and may well dip in the days and weeks ahead. Indeed, the huge gains so far in January have made some money managers turn cautious. The Dow Jones industrial aver-age moved ahead 1.97 more points Tuesday to 2,104.47, making for a total advance of nearly 210 points since the year-end. "I said, any dip in

think the market is setting itself up for a correction on the order of perhaps 10 percent," said Martin D. Sass of M.D. Sass Investors, which manages $2.8 billion.

"I can still see this move carrying the Dow to 2,150 or 2,200 before the correction comes. But, after that, my ulti-mate target is only 2,300 by year-end."

One reason for January's stunning advance, he added, is "panie buying" by some money managers who entered the new year with too much cash. Because most-portfolio managers bave year with too much cash, because most portiono managers bave underperformed the broad market averages for the past two years, they are afraid of missing a big rally. But Forstmann-Leff Associates, a firm with a good performance record, has been raising cash for the past week even as stock prices continued to advance. "We simply think the market is fully valued at these levels," said William F. Harnisch, the is fully valued at mese levels, said william r. framesch, me president of the firm, which manages $4.6 billion. "We went into this year 80 percent invested, and for us, that's bullish," he said. "Currently, we are approaching a cash position of 75 percent and we're still raising cash. For example, we sold some of our Price Co. stock and also have sold Ralston-Purina. Genentech remains our largest position."

Mr. Harnisch also said that any correction in stock prices in coming months was not likely to exceed 10 percent, "provided there is no big crash in the bond market."

OWEVER, David Dreman, the managing director of Dreman Value Management, remains resolutely bullish and keeps the $2.5 billion under his command fully invested, "I believe it is more dangerous to be out of this market than in it," he said. "Bull markets like this one are few and far between, even though there will be bumps along the way."

One view gaining popularity is that stocks that can respond to a revved-up economy should outperform the interest-sensitive sectors such as electric utilities that have benefited in recent years from declining interest rates. "This market has to be driven by improved earnings in order to go higher," Mr. Martin said, As a result, some firms such as Alliance Capital Management

Corp. are changing their mix of investments. Dave Williams, chairman of Alliance, which manages $30 billion in various portfolios as a subsidiary of the Equitable Life Assurance Soci-ety, said. "Our portfolios have been shifting moderately away from consumer-oriented groups like the foods and tobaccos toward sectors that are more economically sensitive. "We also favor groups that, in the past, were hurt by the high value of the dollar," he said. "These include capital goods, papers, chemicals and technology issues." As a matter of policy, Alliance tends to remain pretty fully invested and it does not regard itself as a "market-timing" firm. "We are also adding profession-als in corporate finance, capital markets, fixed-income sales and bond trading." With continuing Japanese gov-ernment budget deficits and the growing internationalization of Tokyo, the volume of trading in yen bonds will increase, Mr. Strauss said. He said he hoped that Salomon's activity in the market would rise by

5 percent a year. The company did not intend to buy a Japanese secu-rities firm, be said, and preferred to expand from within. The capital increase is partly based on the expectation that the Tokyo markets will become more open to foreigners, Mr. Strauss

He urged that more foreign firms be allowed to join the Tokyo Stock Exchange, that a greater propor-tion of government bonds be allocated to foreign members of underwriting syndicates and that foreign securities companies be allowed to deal directly in foreign exchange.

Specter of Joblessness Jolts Japan Nation Struggles A Japanese With a New Idea:

Job Insecurity

By Susan Chira New York Times Service MURORAN, Japan — Hi-deaki Nara, 38 years old and out of work, sat in the unemployment office of this northern in dustrial city and stared at a card describing a job at a textile fac-tory. The job would require him to move away from Muroran, where he lives with and supports his parents, and it would pay him less than he received as a welder with the steel company Nippon Sciko.

Once a boom town, Muroran has begun a slow and seemingly irreversible decline. Mr. Nara, who had expected to work at his company until retirement, lost his job this fall after 18 years; he knows that if he wants to work, he'll have to make some sacri-though I would up to wait for something better," he said. "But now I'm settling for this, if I can get it. There's no future in steel."

Suddenly, the specter of un-employment is a national obsession. Faced with unprecedented competition from emerging eco-nomic powers such as South Ko-rea, and finding their price and wage competitiveness reduced by the strong yen, a number of old-line manufacturers — chiefly coal, steel and shipbuilding com-panies — have announced plans to trim jobs.

The prospect of any disrup-tion in Japan's cherished lifetime employment system is deeply un-settling here. Although the sys-tem was largely a creation of the postwar era, and although it couers no more than about 15 percent of Japan's workers, it is an important symbol of the cooperative labor-management relations that have contributed so much to Japan's economic progress.

For December, prices rose 0.2 per-cent compared with November, when they edged up 0.3 percent. But the 1986 figures were skewed by a 60 percent fall in crude oil prices that pushed down retail gas-oline prices by 30.7 percent and heating oil prices by 29.9 percent. Without those decreases brought on when the pricing struc-ture of the Organization of Petrolcum Exporting Countries col-lapsed into a free-for-all last winter in West Germany, a key measure of inflation there, fell 4.8 percent for the year, thanks largely to the plunge in energy prices compound-ed by the decline in the dollar's value. Oil purchases are paid for in dollars. For the 12 European Com-munity countries, the average inflation rate was running at 3,4 percent in late fall,

The figures for December indi-cated that inflation is creeping back up. The December rise of 0.2 percent is equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 2.9 percent.

LONDON - The dollar ended London Dollar Rates pean trading on what dealers said was short-covering and some profit-taking amid widespread belief that the West German discount rate would be cut Thursday. Uncertainty about the outcome of talks in Washington between the Japanese finance minister, Kiichi Miyazawa, and the U.S. Treasury secretary, James A. Baker 3d, made for cantion, however, and supported the dollar, dealers said.

In London, the dollar closed at 1.8470 DM, up from 1.8375 at Tuesday's close. The closing quote vas well below the day's trading 13 high at 1.8545 DM in the early morning, after a dollar rally in the Far East

Against the yen, the dollar closed in London at 153.90, up from with a U.S. bank said. 152.50 Tuesday.

The British pound was slightly lower against the dollar, at $1.5165, the Bank of Japan had also decided compared with $1.5190 at Tuesin principle to cut leading interest rates, although those rumors could day's close.

I N 1982 Mark Salzman, fresh from studying Chinese at Yale, arrived in China for a twoyear stint teaching English at a medical college in Changsha, the capital of Hunan Province. His first impressions were uppromising. Changsha turned out to be dirty and drab; the "mired in a swamp of loose bricks, cinder-blocks and grey mud," and the heavy hand of officialdom seemed omnipresent.

Yet Salzman was quick to gain the confi-

Many of the stories close on a note of pathos, such as the account of the class in which Salzman asked his students, a group known as "the Middle-Aged English Teachers," to write an essay about their happiest moment. One of them described a visit to Beijing and the Peking duck he had caten in a famous restaurant. Then he confessed that he had never actually been to Beijing - it was his wife, "But she often tells me about it again and again, and I think, even though I was not there, it is my happiest moment." Inevitably the problems and possibilities of "Aussie Rules" - or simply "footy" - is a rough-and-tumble hybrid of rugby and Gaelic football that everyong gets a kick out of. It was invented by gold miners in the 1850s.

Edberg, Lendl Gain Open Semifinals, As Cash Beats Noah, Masur Wins Again

MELBOURNE - Defending champion Stefan Edberg of Sweden and top-seeded lvan Lendl of Czechoslovakia powered their way Wednesday into the men's semifinals of the Australian Open tennis

Edberg, 21, romped to a 6-1, 6-4, 4 victory over sixth-seeded Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia in a match that was interrupted by rain for almost an hour early in the second set.

Lendl, seeking his first grass court Grand Slam title, posted a 7-6 (7-5), 6-1, 6-3 triumph over No. 9 Anders Jarryd of Sweden.

Also advancing to the semifinals was Wally Masur of Australia, who stopped New Zealand's Kelly Evernden, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, in a contest between unseeded players. On Tuesday, Masur shocked two-time Wimbledon champion Boris Becker of West Germany.

In the last quarterfinal pairing, 11th-seeded Pat Cash of Australia climinated No. 3 Yannick Noah of France, 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-0. Cash next will play Lendl. With both Cash and Masur posting victories, it was the first time since 1980 that Australia had had two players reach the men's semifinais. In 1980, Kim Warwick and Peter McNamara were semifinalists, with Warwick advancing to the final before losing to Brian Teacher of the United States.

Lendl now has a 7-1 record against Jarryd. "I'm winning and not making

In the Super Bowl, it often comes down to who is hot. And Johnson is a hot wide receiver, one of the National Football League's fastest players. In two playoff games, he caught seven passes for 114 yards (a 16.3-yard average), with a 48-yard touchdown play. That said, other aspects of John-

As a rookie in 1985, starting only seven games, he caught 51 passes for 721 yards. But he hurt a knee against the Los Angeles Raiders in this season's opener, missed four games after surgery and was undistinguished — until the playoffs.

"It's taken a long time for my speed to come back," he explained. He was distressed with the injury, wondering if his remarkable speed had been affected. He then started dropping passes. As a re-suit, he averaged only 11.7 yards a

ments, and they deserve to be noted. One of them is when the State Department put the arm on the Suitan of Brunei for $10 million to help the contras.

The way they tell it in the State Department cafeteria, Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams thought up the notion of asking the sultan to hand over a few bucks for 1.4 the anti-Sandinist campaign. The sultan is said to be the . Buchwald richest man in the world, and there is so much oil in his country that Brunei children pour it on their cereal in the morning. The sultan, who is very lonely, agreed to give the money, provided Secretary of State George Shultz would stop by Brunei and say hello.

"No problem," Abrams said. "Just deposit the $10 million in this oumbered bank account in Switzerland. And Secretary Shultz will be happy to have a cup of tea with you."

· 🗂 Now here is where things start getting funny. The sultan did as he was told, and the money was put in the Swiss bank. But His Highness never got so much as a thank-you note from the State Department. Every time the sultan saw the U.S. sador to Branci, he winked at him, but the U.S. ambassador did not wink back. Finally the sultan at a reception said to the ambassador, "I know it . isn't much money, but could I get a receipt for my $10 million so I can deduct it from my income tax?" This started bells ringing in the State Department.

Abrams had been getting stories

World? Some people in Washington are also concerned as to how the request to the sultan was made. Did Abcams ask for the money in a nice way, or did he say, "Okay, sultan, give as $10 million or your tall ship will never pass the Statue of Liberand West Virginia.

ty again." Other people in Washington are unhappy that Abrams and Shultz may have started a precedent by leaning on oil-rich sultans to finance U.S. wars that Congress doesn't want to pay for. And then there are those who insist that Abrams sold out the United States too cheap. One expert critical of Abrams said, "Ten million dollars is peanuts to ask Brunei, and it sure isn't worth a stopower by Shultz."

Another question is, why was the State Department using Ollie North's Swiss bank account? Why didn't the State Department have an account of their own in the bank across the street from the American Embassy in Bern? Then embassy employees could watch it in case a Marine Corps lieutenant-colonel or an army general made a withdraw-

Thick as a Plank,' Diana Declines to Play Trivia

Princess Diana told 3 15-yearold boy Tuesday that she wasu'l clever enough to play the top-selling board game Trivial Pursuit. "I asked her if she wanted a question and she said, 'No thanks. I'm as thick as a plank," said Justian Miles. The princess met Miles while visiting Tadworth Court, a hospital in Surrey for chronically sick, handicapped and terminally ill children. ... Prince Charles. heir to the British throne, will honor the last man to conquer England when he attends a service in France on Sept. 9 commemorating the 900th antiversary of the death of William the Conqueror. A royal spokesman said the prince and his wife, Diana, would attend the service in Caen, in Normandy.

The advice columnist Ann Land. ers, the comic strip soldier Beetle Builey and White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan - "Ronald Reagan's left-hand man" - made a list of the "Ten Dullest Ameri-cans." J.D. Stewart, chairman of the "bored" of International Dull Folks Unlimited, also honored the TV newsman Geraldo Rivera for appearing in his "crummy Capone caper and dopey drug bust." Stewart is a Rochester humorist who works as a pricing analyst for East-man Kodak Co, when he is not running his 700-member club.

The Cure, a British rock group that angered Arab-Americans with its song "Killing an Arab," agreed Tuesday to place a sticker explaining the lyrics on each album and asked disc jockeys in the United States to stop playing the single. But the band insisted in its agreement with the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee that the song is not racist. "Killing an Arab" is based on a scene in the Albert Canaus novel "The Stranser." "The song was intent i to mirror one of the key incidents in er." the book: that of the senseless killing of an Arab, on a beach, by the book's protagonist," said a state-ment from the lead singer Robert Smith. co-author of the song. "The fact that it was an Arab who was shot seemed to me totally immaterial, as I imagine it did to Albert Camus. The incident, as I interpreted it, was designed to illustrate the utter funility of the actual action of killing."
